The H1N1 Flu Pandemic has become a regular story item in the paper and nightly news. But have you thought about how a pandemic could affect your agency, staff and the individuals that you serve?

Pandemic planning requires that people and organizations understand the actions and priorities required to prepare for and respond to these potential risks.

This training will provide a briefing for pandemic influenza preparedness.

The training objectives are:

- ◆ To provide information on what a pandemic is, the history of pandemics, and what has been done to prepare
- ◆ To provide update information on the current pandemic and what may occur this fall
- ◆ To provide information on how participants can prepare their agencies and staff

Our presenter will be Marshal A. Bickert, Executive Director of Paratus Solutions. Previously he was the Associate Director of Central Ohio Trauma System where served as the administrator of the Central Ohio Homeland Security Region Healthcare Preparedness Program. Paratus Solutions is a non-profit healthcare and public health emergency preparedness organization whose mission is to reduce disaster-related morbidity and mortality.
