

Nisonger Institute 2019

May 10th, 9am - 12pm - Fawcett Center

Katherine E. McDonald, PhD, FAAIDD

Professor and Program Director of Public Health
Falk College of Sport and Human Dynamics
Syracuse University

Dr. McDonald uses ecological theory and social action research to understand and promote health and well-being among people with intellectual and developmental disabilities; and ethical, legal and social issues in research with adults with intellectual disability.

Ethical Issues in Intellectual and Developmental Disability

A History of the Disability Rights Movement, Guardianship and Community Living

Ethical issues affect the lives of people with intellectual and developmental disabilities. Dr. McDonald will discuss key aspects of the disability rights movement; rights to community living, education, work, decision-making, and other ethical issues. She will also facilitate a response panel on the perspective and legal rights of people with disabilities.

Panelists include:

Michael Kirkman, Executive Director, Disability Rights Ohio

Liz Weintraub, Self-Advocate, Senior Advocacy Specialist, Association of University Centers on Disabilities

Christine Brown, LEND Self-Advocate Faculty Member, Clinical Research Assistant, Nisonger Center

REGISTRATION OPENS MARCH 1st!

THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY

NISONGER CENTER

www.go.osu.edu/ni2019

*OH CSWMFT, OPA-MCE and certificates of attendance will be available