Ahoy mates!

How do you connect with the people of your organization to improve their overall health, productivity and quality of life? If you want your organization, your program, and your culture to thrive, people have to be talking about it and sharing it with others. In order to spark advocacy, an organization must first have advocates, and ideally these are your employees. These are living messengers who believe the organization's purpose is also their purpose and are willing to carry the torch on your behalf inside and outside the walls of the organization.

Join a pirate crew to create a "Shared Ship" community where word of mouth marketing is your ally as you create well-being experiences that transform organizations and people into better versions of themselves. You may be scratching your head...pirates and workplace experiences? This seminar can help you bring together the "band of pirates" at your organization to create positive culture shifts and tap into the opportunity of your "crew"!

Join Brian Passon and the Gallagher team as we learn how to utilize advocates, fans, influencers and informal leaders in your culture, put people at the center of your strategy, and dig deeper to understand how community is like a Shared Ship.
